Skinny Skribbles

Around And About Town

With C. F. (Skinny) SKIRVIN

Lynn Shoot is vacationing in and around Chicago. The Tulsa colia way he gets a whiff of Illinois prairie and poetically overcomes says something about the rivers, trees and streams and thirt, but he'll see the home folks the twenty-fifth. Lynn's atmosphere is flowers when he is home, so nature appeals to him, when there isn't too much heat.

And another reason why Corigan flew east instead of west was that he thought he was still inside the Los Angeles city limits.

The way to shave a display window is to use a safety razor blade, some arm power and patience. Watched an operator at work removing sign. The conclusions are mine, the razor blade his.

By the way, what has become of "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen"?

Local citizen, with pardonable pride in home-owned horse which has been "in the money" for several times, decides he will speculate Ltd. and flings a buck across the counter to bet 'er on the nose. He still possesses his loyalty, but is out his dollar.

The strain hasn't run out. Remember a week in the good old days when you made a deal with a friend just by word of mouth, and went through with it? Those were the days before business complications, federal impositions, and state regulations poked their noses into the transaction. Now you start with one piece of paper and use up a ream of it before the final o. k., plus attached check. Well, not long ago two of those away back when boys got together. One wanted to buy a home owned by the other. They just talked it over and drew up an informal document, drifted into an escrow office with the information that one had agreed to sell and the other had agreed to buy, and a thousand dollars was the deposit evidence. Well, the deal went through.

There is always a temptation, says a Californian by adoption, when one sees a car from the home state, to go up and introduce yourself and inquire about conditions back home. There is just something saturating the system that doesn't easily dissolve, when it comes to memories. Then about the time you start toward the car you get a hunch that maybe the tourist shouldn't care a flip whether you were a former resident or just a nuisance, and you don't talk. But the incident took you back to the old state, and maybe you missed a good visit with some one who knew some one you knew.

You can't get away from a trade-mark. So one of the boys from the old home town says he picked me out because I wore a cap. He used to work for a Rock Island as telegraph operator in my town. Brought in from a country telegraph station and didn't like the change. Case of where you could take the man out of the country but you couldn't take the country out of the man, and he was proud of it.

Lester Grant, chief of police at Huntington Beach, left the water front long enough yesterday to visit the official family in Santa Ana. Fraternized also with the courthouse personnel. Maybe he came over to get his nerves adjusted, following the visit of the President of the United States. Police care during one of those calls is high tension business.

An official of the Breakfast club soliciting membership. This was the alibi. Too early to get up in the morning. Seven-thirty breakfast didn't fit in with this fellow's Morpheus curriculum. Same bird belonged to the owl family and could stay out most of the night. Maybe that's why he seldom saw the sunrise. The Spirit of Youth had no appeal.

My vacation consists of reading the other fellow's souvenir cards. I at least get his viewpoint, and sometimes his opinion. I have a flock of friends out on vacations, so I'm expecting some interesting information during the next few weeks.

Delivered during my absence but none the less welcome, candidate card from Maxwell Burke who wants to be district attorney. The pleasure of posting the card was denied me, as it was conspicuously placed before my arrival. However, it appears in the gallery of local fame. Service free and impartial.

Milt Johnson went into the Owens river territory to fish, not to catch mosquitoes, so that's why he came home.

'Papoose Plane' Reaches Canada In Record Time

First Pick-a-Back Ship Completes Flight Across Atlantic

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y. (AP)—The 10-ton British "papoose plane" Mercury, completing a flight of 3042 miles from Ireland, arrived at the transatlantic air terminal at 3:08 p. m. (EST) today. The actual flying time for the trip across the Atlantic was 22 hours, 28 minutes. A stop of 2 hours, 40 minutes was made at Montreal, making the total time 25 hours and eight minutes. The Mercury was launched from her mother ship, the flying boat Maia, at Foynes, Ireland, yesterday, high above the seacoast. It was the first operation of its kind across the Atlantic.

MONTREAL (Canadian Press)—The first transatlantic flight of a pick-a-back plane ended here at 10:20 a. m., E. S. T., today when the British seaplane Mercury alighted on the St. Lawrence river near Montreal.

The Mercury glided to a smooth landing in the Boucherville air harbor 20 hours and 20 minutes after leaving Foynes, Ireland, 2715 miles away, where she had been launched by her mother ship, the Maia.

Some 2000 miles of her route had traversed the North Atlantic and the camp on Montreal without making her expected stop at Botwood, Newfoundland, Boucherville is 12 miles east of Montreal.

The Atlantic crossing was accomplished at 3:29 a. m., E. S. T., when the Mercury, 13 hours, 20 minutes, out of Foynes, passed over Cape Bauld, at the northern tip of Newfoundland, and headed inland.

The Mercury was launched from the back of the Maia, her heavier twin, at Foynes at 2 p. m., E. S. T., yesterday on the first of the experimental flights to precede regular transatlantic service to New York, to be started in 1939.

The flight was uneventful and throughout the trip the Mercury was in touch with her base at Foynes or with St. Hubert airport, 12 miles south of here. SOME FOG, RAIN

An average speed of 145 miles an hour was maintained, and for the most part the ship flew around 7000 feet.

Through the night Skipper Donald Bennett reported at regular intervals "Going well" and "Flying at moderate speed below clouds."

There were head winds, fog and some rain through the first half of the trip, but they caused no trouble to the trim ship, which surpassed Imperial Airways' seaplane, Capt. Robert's east-west time of 14 hours, 24 minutes, made on an experimental flight last July 27.

The Cambria, however, landed at Botwood, and it was not at once apparent whether the new time would be accepted as a record, since the Mercury did not land there.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Nervously lacing and unlacing his fingers, Arthur Emil Hansen, 38-year-old former South Dakota farmer, kept a tight lipped silence today while his attorney entered pleas of not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity on charges that he slew two attorneys in a court room here last June 22.

Attorney Stanley Visel entered the pleas for the sturdy, tollown man who signed a confession after he shot A. D. McLaughlin and J. Irving Hancock in the courtroom of Commissioner Kurtz Kaufman.

Hughes Delayed at Washington Lunch

WASHINGTON (AP)—Howard Hughes, who recently set a new globe-circling record, arrived in Washington from New York today almost an hour late.

The millionaire flyer came here to address the National Press club. He had been scheduled to arrive at 11:30 a. m., but actually did not arrive until 12:20 p. m.

Airline officials said the delay was occasioned by Hughes himself. He was 40 minutes late in reaching Newark airport to begin the journey.

Torch Singer 'Swings It' In Station; Engineer Sees Signal and Starts Train

NEW YORK (AP)—Ethel Merman, torch singer "swung it" on the steps of the Twentieth Century Limited today and almost swung the train right out of Grand Central station.

An enterprising photographer handed her a signal lantern as she stepped off the train from Hollywood. "Swing it," he directed. Miss Merman did; the lantern, and also the strains of "She Started a Heat Wave."

Fire Fighters Flee Canadian Blaze

With the Giant Campbell river forest fire threatening British Columbia, Canada, settlement, these fire fighters found the flames sweeping too close and were forced to drop their tools and flee.

NAVY PLANE FALLS IN BAY

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A seaplane from the battleship Idaho plunged into the bay near San Francisco airport today and the navy reported two fliers were killed.

Capt. Alexander Sharp, commander of the Idaho, said the victims were Lieut. James Albert Murphy, 31, the pilot, and Orville Albert Steward, chief aviation machinist's mate.

Lieut. Murphy enlisted in Texas but other information on the men's home cities was not available at navy headquarters here.

The plane, flying with other craft from the battleship, suddenly hurtled out of formation and plunged into the bay.

An eyewitness to the accident said he saw an object that "might have been a man" either jump or fall from the plane just before it hit the water.

Boats and seaplanes hurried to the spot and a salvage tug, the Undaunted, left Mare Island to raise the wreckage.

Cause of Blast, Fatal to 10, Probed

BALTIMORE (AP)—The cause of a premature dynamite explosion that trapped and killed 10 negroes and injured six other men working in a tunnel 145 feet underground was sought today by federal, state and city experts.

Daniel Harrington, of the federal bureau of mines, assigned W. J. Shene, engineer, and J. E. Tiffany, explosives expert, to investigate the disaster, with the state bureau of mines, the state industrial accident commission and city engineers cooperating.

Queen's Body in Bucharest Palace

BUCHAREST (AP)—The body of dowager Queen Marie of Rumania was placed today in the royal palace to lie in state until the funeral Sunday.

It was brought to Bucharest by train from Sinaia, the royal summer residence, where the queen died Monday in her 63rd year, after a long illness.

Lower Income Tax Exemptions Talked

WASHINGTON (AP)—Roswell Magill, acting secretary of the treasury, announced today the administration was studying the feasibility of lowering personal income tax exemptions.

In recent years, congress has repeatedly defeated efforts by Senator LaFollette (P., Wis.) to cut the exemption for single persons from $1000 to $800 and for heads of families from $2500 to $2000.

Japanese Warships Move Soldiers

SHANGHAI (AP)—Japanese warships began today the transport of heavy reinforcements into the upper Yangtze battle area, where the Japanese army is stalled in its drive toward Hankow.

7 Boys, No Girls Born in Last 2 Days

Old "Doc" Stork made seven stops in Orange county yesterday today, flying away without leaving a single daughter to as many couples.

Sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. John Morris, Orange; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Nelson, Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Godat, Anaheim; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Manning, Orange, and Mr. and Mrs. Juan Albarez, Fullerton, yesterday; and to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lillard, Tustin, and Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Balch, Anaheim, today.

OWEN WISTER, AUTHOR, DIES

NORTH KINGSTON, R. I. (AP)—Owen Wister, 78, famous novelist and author of "The Virginian," died of a cerebral hemorrhage today at his summer home, Crowfield. He arrived there for the season on July 8 and became ill only yesterday.

In recent years, Wister had lived quietly during the summers in South county, and his last public appearance was at the "Animated Magazine," a charity entertainment in Narragansett, in 1935.

Strikes Tie Up 2 Ships at San Pedro

SAN PEDRO (AP)—A lumber steamer and a freighter were tied up at the harbor here today.

Due to sail Tuesday for San Francisco, Swayne & Hoyt's freighter Point Chico was unable to replace two paid-off seamen pending settlement of a dispute with the crew, which demanded the discharge of the chief steward because of alleged meager food.

When longshoremen refused to work lumber with split crews of sailors, the Coast Bay Lumber company's steamer Lumberton was forced to remain inactive. Arbitration of the dispute was asked by the Waterfront Employers' association.

Joint Tenancy Suit Filed Here

Termination of joint tenancy in the estate of Mary E. Laverling, who died July 1, was asked in a superior court petition by C. E. Laverling of Huntington Beach today.

The property held in joint tenancy consists of 14 parcels in Huntington Beach, Los Angeles, Glendale, Hawthorne and Tulare county.

619 Workers Flee As Building Falls

BALTIMORE (AP)—A three-story brick building being remodelled collapsed here today, 19 workmen barely escaping from the cellar before the crash.

One workman, Dick Brady, whose shouting warning saved his fellows, himself was unable to escape. Freed after a half hour's digging, Brady was believed not critically hurt.

Girl, 17, Deserts Family on Vacation Here and Starts Hitch-Hiking for Adventure

Somewhere between Santa Ana and Glasgow, Mont., there is a 17-year-old hitch-hiker, Dorothy Bretzke, who left here yesterday after notifying her mother, Mrs. Lou Bretzke, by note that "I want some excitement."

Santa Ana police have sent teletype messages to stations along the way in an effort to locate the girl, who had been vacationing here. Mrs. Bretzke told police her family had planned to start for their home in Montana next Monday, and was startled when she received the following note from her daughter.

FIRE SWEEPS 90,000 ACRES

SEATTLE (AP)—Forest fires raged forward savagely in the Pacific Northwest today despite the efforts of the greatest army of fire fighters mobilized in this area in recent years.

In British Columbia a forecast of "fresh westerly winds" added to the problem of 1000 men fighting a 40,000 acre fire. Firemen built breaks around Campbellton on the west flank of the blaze and at camp three of the Comox Logging Co., at its southern extremity. From 30 to 60 million feet of cut lumber would be endangered if the fire reached the camp.

Two Canadian destroyers remained at strategic points on Vancouver Islands to evacuate residents of settlements in the fire's path if it became necessary.

Unofficial estimates indicated 90,000 acres of timber, some of it commercial, had been burned over since the season's worst fire period started about 10 days ago. Timberlands were converted into tinderboxes by continued low humidity and high temperatures.

Contract Awarded For Orange Bridge

A contract to erect a reinforced concrete girder bridge across Santiago creek one-fourth mile south of Orange at a cost of $45,723 has been awarded to the Los Angeles firm of Byerts and Dunn, it was revealed today in a dispatch from Sacramento.

The contract was awarded by the state department of public works.

The new bridge will replace the present structure across Grand avenue, which leads into Orange via South Glassell street, officials here revealed. It has been under consideration for several months.

Temperature 112 In Interior Valley

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—California's inland valleys looked for slightly cooler weather today, after yesterday's scorching temperature that reached 112 degrees at Redding and 108 at Fresno.

The death of Mrs. Helen H. Davis, 45, of Mill Valley, was attributed yesterday to the 103 degree heat at Vacaville.

19 Workers Flee As Building Falls

BALTIMORE (AP)—A three-story brick building being remodelled collapsed here today, 19 workmen barely escaping from the cellar before the crash.

One workman, Dick Brady, whose shouting warning saved his fellows, himself was unable to escape. Freed after a half hour's digging, Brady was believed not critically hurt.

Widow Of Slain Man On Stand Against Her Son

Mrs. Cora Dillinger Testifies at Hearing Given Calhoun

A tall, wiry Oklahoma woman took the witness stand today against her son, charged with murder in the fatal shooting of her husband.

Mrs. Cora Dillinger, widow of a relative of the late gangster John Dillinger, was called as a witness today at preliminary hearing against her son, Charles Calhoun, opened before Justice Chris Pann in Huntington Beach justice court.

Dillinger, 30, former convict, was fatally wounded June 26 in Midway City by a bullet held by Calhoun, 28, who had brooded for months over alleged intimacies of his stepfather with Calhoun's women relatives and his asserted brutality to Mrs. Dillinger.

"I heard the gun fire just a few minutes after Charley went out of the kitchen," Mrs. Dillinger said. "I ran out the door. Charley was right behind me. . . . My husband was lying on the ground. . . . Charley had the rifle in his hand and I told him not to do any more shooting. . . . It was just like a dream to me. . . ."

TURNED OFF FIRE "Charley told my husband 'I didn't aim to kill you; I want you to remember what you've done to me and my wife and my mother and sister.' Charley went next door to phone, and he called for the law to come and get him. I went back in the house and took my skillet off the fire and turned the fire out."

Mrs. Dillinger's testimony followed examination of Dr. Russell L. Johnson of Westminster, first physician on the scene who later operated on the fatally-wounded Dillinger, and of Dr. Ralph E. White, county hospital physician who attended the victim until Dillinger died from peritonitis July 12 after four blood transfusions and a hard fight against infection.

COLLECTS $250 Deputy Sheriff Tom Murphine, one of the first officers to arrive at the scene after Calhoun called for police to arrest him, said he found Calhoun in the Midway City feed store.

"He was alone there," said Murphine. "He came out and said 'I guess you're looking for me.' He said while he was waiting for the police to come he had gone next door and gotten a check for $250 that a man owed him for doing some work, and he went down to the feed store to cash the check. He said he aimed at Dillinger's leg the first time, and said he had to push his mother-in-law out of the way to shoot at Dillinger again as he was lying on the ground. . . . He said he was sorry he hadn't shot to kill, that Dillinger deserved it."

QUESTION STRICKEN "Did he tell you," asked Defense Attorney N. D. Meyer, "that Dillinger once had tied Mrs. Dillinger in their home while he went out and had relations with another woman?" "Charley didn't know about that," began Mrs. Dillinger from the audience. Immediate objections by Asst. Dist. Atty. Preston (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Douglas Corrigan's biggest error could be responsible for netting him "several hundred thousand dollars." The wrong-way flyer's uncle, Rev. S. Fraser Langford, revealed today that offers for Douglas to endorse various commodities are pouring in in an endless stream. The uncle said he plans to ask a group of business and civic leaders here to form a non-profit board to advise his nephew on what offers he should accept and what ones he should reject.

U. S. Tightens Lid On Army Secrets To Thwart Foreign Spies

NEW RULES TO CHECK ALIEN ESPIONAGE

WASHINGTON. (AP)—War department officials disclosed today that the recent arrest of spy ring suspects in New York has been followed by a tightening of the lid on army secrets.

An official circular added "safeguarding of military information to a standing list of nine basic functions of the army's military intelligence division."

This division, officially designated as "G-2," has charge of preparing and keeping codes, ciphers, and maps and collecting information through attaches abroad.

In line with the new caution, changes have been made in regulations requiring candidates for reserve commissions in the military intelligence to pass examinations in safeguarding secret information.

The navy previously had put into effect extraordinary precautions to prevent leaks.

Publications of detailed information on the progress of warship construction was limited early this year. New legislation has given both services authority to regulate or prohibit picture-taking in the vicinity of military posts or warships.

Navy photographers recently took official pictures of every officer and man at the Newport, R. I., torpedo station. Though officials asserted the procedure was nothing unusual, military circles believed it was without a precedent.

Looking to the future, well-informed persons said, President Roosevelt's recent observation that both the army and navy should have more funds to combat spies may bring about a military intelligence "career corps" to work more closely with the justice department.

BABS, COUNT PLAN PARTING

LONDON. (AP)—Attorneys for Count and Countess Haugwitz Reventlow were understood today to be planning a private separation under which the countess, the former Barbara Hutton, would receive custody of their two-year-old daughter and the count would have permission to see the boy at intervals.

Two Danish lawyers retained by the Woolworth heiress have arrived to collaborate with her London attorneys.

Both the count and the countess were understood to be desirous of avoiding further court publicity following the sensational hearing July 5 in Bow Street police court in which the count was accused of threatening his wife and an unnamed "London society gentleman."

'Non-Stop' Corrigan Rides Again

Before "this hero business turned sour" to the taste of Douglas Corrigan, he took another ride, this time on an Irish jaunting car—a slower means than the transportation method he is accustomed to. Corrigan had declared he does not want anyone to give him an airplane, despite many offers of one, and that he will return to the United States by boat. This radio picture shows the filer of the $900-transatlantic plane, when being a hero was great fun.

Being a Movie Star Is Just Side-Line for Mickey, But He Is Working in 4 Pictures

HOLLYWOOD. (AP)—Pint-sized Mickey Rooney is a movie star strictly as a sideline.

It earns him his bread and butter, he admitted today, but he's found there are other things in life.

He is writing some special tunes for his swing band to play in expectation of a nationwide tour.

He is taking a course in photography, which he thinks will be helpful when he becomes a director. He's serious about directing, Louis B. Mayer has promised to put him in charge of a one-reel short when he is 21.

He is drilling his football team, even though it's summer, for a rigorous fall schedule of games. They will share Gilmore stadium with professional outfits.

He has sent his high school credits to the University of California at Los Angeles, hoping to be entered as a freshman major in English.

He is trying to persuade his family to buy a 50-foot sloop so he can sail to Honolulu.

He is working now in two pictures, "Stablemates" and "Boys Town," and M-G-M has four stories in preparation for him.

He has accepted the challenge of the "dead end" boys for a softball game.

He hopes M-G-M holds off those four stories until he wins that game.

EX-FELON ENDS LIFE, TRAPPED AFTER HOLDUP

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—The past of a 35-year-old former convict, who killed himself when trapped after a holdup, was searched by police today for a possible clue to the unsolved slaying of King D. Gray, movie cameraman.

Abandoning a bullet-pierced car, with which he had fled Los Angeles early yesterday, Joseph L. Chester, alias Louis A. Korec, shot himself as a police dragnet found him in Baldwin park.

John Fountain, 26, suspected of being Chester's companion in the holdup which netted $23, was arrested last night in Ventura and returned here. He was booked on suspicion of robbery, attempted murder and attempted kidnapping.

Detective Lieutenant E. E. Rombeau said Fountain told of riding with Chester when their car crashed against a post and of hitch-hiking his way to Ventura. During the chase, he suffered a broken bone in his shoulder.

Fountain, the detective said, disclosed that Chester mentioned recently he was "uneasy about a Hollywood murder."

An investigation was launched immediately to determine whether Chester was connected with the fatal shooting of Cameraman Gray in an automobile parked in front of the Hollywood postoffice last June 30.

20 feet across the sidewalk, through a show window and against the back wall of a store, 60 feet from the door. Nobody was injured, because the accident occurred at midnight.

MUSTARD JAR BATTLE PUTS MAN IN JAIL

It doesn't pay to hit one's wife over the head with a jar of mustard.

Charged with assault and battery following a family row in which he hurled the jar at his wife, Honaro Morales, 701 Fairlawn, Santa Ana, was found guilty in City Judge J. G. Mitchell's court yesterday, and sentenced to 180 days in the county jail. The sentence will be reduced to 60 days with good behavior, the judge ruled.

Victor Elizaja, 305 1/2 Spurgeon street, was committed to the county jail to serve out a $20 fine for intoxication. Carl Lindman, Westminster, must pay $15 on a similar charge.

Speeding fines were paid by James Meador of Los Angeles, $10; Maxine Moore of Whittier, $5; Carroll Waite, San Luis Obispo, $8; Martha Neighbors, Anaheim, $8; Charles Niemeyer, Orange, was given an $8 work order for speeding. Overtime parking fines of $1 were paid by Clarence McGowan, R. K. Dobson, James Dugan and Dan Pinnix, all of Santa Ana.

BROAD HEALTH PROGRAM UP TO CONGRESS

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Miss Josephine Roche, chairman of the President's committee on medical care, said today the 1939 congress would be asked to authorize a broad national health program.

She declined to discuss its scope, but indicated it would be patterned after the $850,000,000-a-year plan submitted to the national health conference earlier this week.

The big question was the probable attitude of the American Medical association toward such legislation. Officials of the society criticized the committee's program as not answering the problem of obtaining adequate medical care for all.

It was apparent, however, that the legislation would have the backing of a sizable group of doctors. The committee of physicians, composed of "rebel" leaders in the A. M. A., called a meeting in New York today to discuss results of the health conference.

The $850,000,000 program was not put to a vote in the conference, which closed yesterday, but delegates representing labor and farm organizations expressed individual approval.

Miss Roche, former assistant secretary of the treasury, told the conference:

"The discussions here have revealed there is substantial agreement on fundamental points. We believe everyone agrees that a national health program should be developed and that any such program must of course safeguard and advance the quality of medical service."

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical association, compared the suggested program to an attempt to fly to Ireland without proper equipment.

"A program planned in the light of conditions in this country during the past 10 years," he said, "cannot be a far-reaching program planned for a nation which is to go forward during the next 10 years."

A greater problem than medical care, he declared, is providing food, fuel, clothing, shelter and a job with adequate wages for everyone in the United States."

Mexico City Bids For Film Industry

HOLLYWOOD. (AP)—Mexico City was disclosed today as ambitious to become the motion picture capital of Latin America.

Paul H. Bush, Mexican producer, said a 100 per cent expansion of Mexican films is planned to take place within six months.

"Hollywood has failed in its efforts to make Spanish language pictures because of the high cost of production here and lack of understanding of Latin psychology," he asserted.

TOWARD TWO CITIES—Hankow which became provisional capital after Japanese took Peking, and ancient Canton near British-owned Hongkong—do Mikado's armies push. With an already sizeable chunk of land (vertical shading), Japan chartered a "no man's land" for foreigners—this line extending north from Pakhoi to Ichang to Sian, then east and north along the Yellow river. Japan's bombing of Swatow, treaty port, and the landing of troops on Nansha Island, presage a drive on Canton, China thinks. Britain and France have warned Japan to stay off Hainan island and will act to support each other in case "complications arise," said British government.

President's Cruiser Heads For Remote Coral Islands Far Out From Mexican Coast

ABOARD U. S. S. HOUSTON, EN ROUTE TO PANAMA. (AP)—

The cruiser Houston, carrying President Roosevelt and his fishing companions on a vacation jaunt down the Pacific, clipped along at 21 knots today toward French-owned Clipperton island, poorly charted and a danger to navigation.

The island, lying 670 miles off the Mexican mainland on a line between Hawaii and Panama, consists of a low coral ring of sand-like appearance. Varying in width from a few yards to a quarter of a mile and rising from the sea to a height of five to 14 feet.

Within this coral ring is a large, circular lagoon with rapids from a few inches to more than 300 feet. The island is fringed by a continuous coral reef and coral rocks. At the southeast end a huge rock, like a ship under full sail, rises 70 feet.

Ships are warned that the island is dangerous to navigation, even under the most favorable conditions. Mariners are urged to approach Clipperton with great caution.

For one thing, the exact location of the island is not definitely known. It has been reported to lie five miles north of its present charted position.

Captain Barker of the Houston plans to make observations. These he will report to the navy's hydrographic office so that officials there can exactly chart the island for the first time.

While Captain Barker is taking his observations, and Professor Waldo Schmidt of the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, D. C., is making scientific investigations on the island, President Roosevelt and others of his party will resume their fishing.

They had a great day with their rods and reels yesterday while the Houston anchored off Socorro island. The fish were so plentiful, the party caught 130, averaging 10 to 20 pounds each, in only three hours.

The President for the second time since July 1937, left San Diego last Saturday, came off with top honors, landing a 30-pound bluejack. He battled a shark for half an hour but the shark won when the President's line broke.

HENDAYE, France. (At The Spanish Frontier). (AP)—Insurgents unleashed a general offensive in eastern, central and southern Spain today against government lines weakened by Generalissimo Francisco Franco's steady drive toward Valencia.

LEVEE REPAIR COMES BEFORE BOARD FRIDAY

How to fix the flood-razed Santa Ana river levees without money is the problem which will face county supervisors tomorrow morning at a special session.

The county board has promised delegations of residents who would be flooded in case of a still rain that the levees will be repaired—if local money has to be spent for the $700,000 job. Eighteen miles of banks were washed out; and full local financing would call for a tax rate of about 75 cents per $100 assessed valuation if the money had to be raised all in one year.

Anaheim district residents have urged a bond issue, but property owners in other parts of the county have their doubts about the success of such a measure.

What supervisors want is part of a $5,000,000 emergency fund provided by the legislature at a special session last March for flood relief. No word has yet come from Sacramento as to how much money will be available; and the entire local problem hinges on that.

Chairman Willard Smith of the county board hopes for word from Sacramento before tomorrow's session, he said. Whatever money is secured would be used as the sponsor's share for a WPA project.

He's 82 and Happy, Without Tobacco, Liquor or Novels

CHICAGO. — James Alexander Hendry, St. Louis businessman, says he has had a full and happy 82 years of living although he has never:

Read a novel, danced, smoked nor chewed tobacco, taken a drink of liquor, played cards, seen a ball game.

But, he said, he has:

Not missed church or Sunday school in 55 years.

France Parades War Machine for King, Queen of Britain

DEMOCRACIES' STRONG BONDS DEMONSTRATED

PARIS. (AP)—France paraded her newest war machines for the first time today to demonstrate to King George VI of Britain the strength she can lend to their common cause.

For more than an hour, infantry, cavalry and artillery regiments—the flower of the French army—swung by the red-carpeted reviewing stand at Versailles to the music of massed military bands.

King George, in the tunic of a field marshal, and President Albert Lebrun of France, reviewed the colorful columns of marching men, totaling 50,000, supported by hundreds of tanks and about 50 airplanes.

The spectacle, a highlight of King George's state visit to France, attested to the strong bonds that unite Europe's great democratic powers.

When King George reached Versailles a 101-gun salute was started. It continued throughout the parade, one salvo each minute. The king and President Lebrun were taken from the station to the reviewing stand in a bullet-proof automobile flanked by a mounted guard of colorful Spahis. Queen Elizabeth and Mme. Lebrun arrived later by special train and were accompanied by mounted Spahis to the Versailles chateau to attend a sumptuous luncheon in the Hall of Mirrors—where the Versailles treaty ending the World war was signed.

Vast throngs lining the route of the parade saw implements of war the French army never before had shown publicly.

They watched columns of trucks swiftly pulling 6-inch guns on pneumatic rubber tires and mechanized 3-inch anti-aircraft guns with trucks for ammunition.

Fifty infantry trucks, each mounting two machine-guns and carrying 10 soldiers armed with repeating guns, paraded past together with tanks ranging from tiny whippets to rolling fortresses. Tanks, weighing as much as 12 tons, had 3-inch guns protruding from their snouts.

Troops, including detachments from all France's colonial possessions, lined both sides of the route to the Versailles chateau and presented arms as the king and president drove past after the review. The crowds cheered King George and he saluted in return as his automobile passed through double ranks of soldiers holding back the crowds.

The luncheon in the Hall of Mirrors rivaled those given by Louis the Fourteenth at Versailles in his "golden age" of the French monarchy (1643-1715).

Ten chosen chefs who worked all night to make the affair a masterpiece were sure that it surpassed any of the banquets during the visits exchanged by Premier Mussolini of Italy and Chancellor Hitler of Germany.

It was served by an army of bearded flunkies in the powder blue and scarlet uniform of the royal house of France. Thousands of pieces of priceless Limoges porcelain were used.

President Lebrun escorted Queen Elizabeth into the Hall of Mirrors, while the king gave him arm to Mme. Lebrun.

A hidden orchestra played seventeenth century music, as in the days of Louis the Fourteenth.

Upper Colorado Reservoirs Urged

SALT LAKE CITY. (AP)—Upper basin Colorado river states were urged today to rush construction of reservoirs and dams to conserve water that is now flowing down the river, where it is used by Mexican interests.

"Larger storage volume upon the upper tributaries (in Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and New Mexico) is desirable," Thomas C. Adams, assistant professor of engineering at the University of Utah and a Colorado river expert, told the 68th annual convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

British King Salutes Frenchmen

King George VI of England is shown saluting the crowd which cheered him as he left the railway station at Paris, France, upon his arrival for a state visit—the first in 25 years by a British king. The king is followed by President Albert Lebrun of France, who is partly obscured by the man walking beside him. This picture was sent from London to New York by radio.

ROY VINCENT DIES IN LAGUNA BEACH HOME

Roy E. Vincent, for many years active in business in Santa Ana, died suddenly of a heart attack at his home at Laguna Beach this morning. He operated a sheet metal business here and had numerous ranch interests for approximately 20 years, moving to Laguna two years ago to become owner and president of the South Coast Theaters, Inc.

A life member of Santa Ana Elks lodge, he was 47 years of age. Besides his widow, Mrs. Ethel Vincent, he is survived by two sons, Ronald E. and Robert L. Vincent, he is survived by two sons, Ronald E. and Robert L. Vincent, both of Laguna, and his mother, Mrs. Hattie J. Vincent of Santa Ana.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 10 a. m. at Smith and Tutthill's chapel, with the Rev. W. J. Hatter officiating, and burial at Fairhaven cemetery.

AROUND AND ABOUT TOWN WITH SKINNY

a two-weeks' trip everywhere, and tells me "I ain't seen anything yet." Pushed himself in the front seat and behind the steering wheel. Didn't stop until he had covered some 4500 miles. Never said anything to me about the gas cost, but talked about the pleasure and the unexpected thrills he had out of the trip going as far east as Fort Smith, Ark., into Oklahoma, into the Carlsbad Caverns, Cliff Dwellers sector, and home via so much scenery he has to readjust himself to the home environment. While crop conditions are fine, he said housing conditions were the punk. Weather and time had worn through once substantial residences, but the people were happy as they got out of the ground what they couldn't get out of the atmosphere.

S. A. TO NAME SNOW WHITE

The Santa Ana chamber of commerce today is seeking a girl to represent this community in the Balboa Tournament of Lights, Aug. 20.

E. B. Sharpley, chairman of the chamber promotion and advertising committee, was assigned the task of selecting the girl on recommendation of other chamber of commerce officials. The tournament association announced that results of the tournament queen contest will be known at a date to be announced later.

Each community in Orange county will be urged to select an entrant. The committee has asked the chamber of commerce here to instruct the girl it selects to dress in "Snow White." She must furnish her own costume. The girl named must be between 16 and 18 years of age.

VOTERS RUSH TO REGISTER ON FINAL DAY

A last-day swarm of potential voters swamped County Clerk B. J. Smith's office today as registration for the Aug. 30 primaries drew to a close.

To handle last minute registrations, re-registrations and changes of party affiliations, Smith's office was to remain open until 9 o'clock tonight. One hundred twenty-five registration clerks scattered through the entire county have received orders to turn in their books tomorrow.

Principal swing in party affiliation this week has been from the Townsend party, which has not qualified for the ballot, to Democratic affiliation. Although Townsendites have endorsed the Republican candidacy of C. T. Johnson of San Bernardino for congress, observers pointed out, they now are registering Democratic in order to rally behind J. F. T. O'Connor, Townsend-endorsed candidate for governor. Johnson has no opposition in the primaries.

No final figures on registration will be available for several days, since all registration books will have to be checked before voting lists can be made up, Smith said. Total registration will be swelled by several hundred, however, and the Townsend swing probably will give the Democratic registrations and additional edge of close to 1000 over Republicans.

MARR TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Warren Marr, once-escaped bunco suspect, was guarded closely today as he was taken to the county hospital for X-ray examinations of his stomach, which he says has been troubling him.

Marr was returned three weeks ago from Indiana state penitentiary, where he was discovered serving a term for fraudulent stock deals after escaping from a local officer in 1936 while awaiting trial on a nine-count grand jury indictment charging grand theft and corporate securities act violations.

The prisoner had been hospitalized in Indiana before he was returned here, and lately has been complaining of indigestion, officers said. He was taken to the hospital for X-ray examination and returned immediately to the county jail.

LONG MOTOR TRIP FINISHED

F. A. Jones and family are home from a vacation trip of several weeks, which included visits to Boulder Dam, Salt Lake City, Boise, Seattle, and other of the northwestern states.

The visit to the old home in Puyallup, Wash., was one of the most interesting, in that it was F. A.'s former home. The country in that section is beautiful, says Mr. Jones, but there is an apparent lack of cooperation and aggressive business application, which leaves surplus crops unsold. The thrill of the trip was at Crescent City where a mountain started to move just about the time the Jones arrived. The highway force refused permission to proceed, but allowed the tourists to watch the earth move onto and block the road. It was a seven-hour delay.

JURY OUT IN DEATH CASE

A superior court jury retired at 11:10 a. m. today to consider three days of testimony in trial of a suit in which Mr. and Mrs. Wilton C. Boucher ask $30,466.33 from Grace De Beard for alleged negligence in connection with the auto accident which killed their son, Dallas Boucher, three months ago.

The Bouchers ask $30,000 for death of their son, in addition to $466.33 funeral expenses. They were represented by A. P. G. Steffes, Los Angeles, and Milburn Harvey, Santa Ana attorney. Fred Forgy was attorney for the defendant.

Superior Judge Raymond McIntosh spent more than an hour of today's court session reading instructions to the jury.

Police News

Carl Kennedy, 1309½ West Fourth street, reported to police the theft of a dark brown purse, containing $1 in change, from a locker at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday.

A man grabbed two beef roasts and fled from the Scott's Malt shop yesterday. Darwin Scott, proprietor, complained to police yesterday.

Police have discovered a wire wheel and tire, apparently lost off an automobile, and have stored them at the station.

Property damage only resulted from an automobile crash involving Harry McDowell, 619 East Second street, Santa Ana, and Edward Anthony, Tustin, at Second and Ross streets yesterday, it was reported to police.

PLACENTIAN HELD

Anastacio Campos, 45, Placentia laborer, was booked in the county jail last night by Placentia police, who charged him with disturbing the peace.

TWO BOYS HELD

Bob Grassmuck, 18, Huntington Beach student, and a 17-year-old Santa Ana youth were booked in the county jail last night on burglary charges from Huntington Beach.

OIL STOLEN

Theft of several oil drums containing $28.25 worth of oil was reported to the sheriff's office yesterday by O. Otte, Los Alamitos boulevard. Otte said the theft occurred Tuesday.

FASHIONNETTES

Just Found Out About Orange County

By MILLARD BROWNE

Meter Checker

Onie A. Sanders watches 58,200 wheels go around every month. He's been doing it every month since 1922, but during that first year he only checked up on 34,200 wheels.

Because in 1922 there were only 5700 water meters in Santa Ana, each with six wheels; now there are 9700, and Sanders reads each of them once a month. He gets some help on busy months from Billy Smith, who works in another city department.

The city's 9700 water customers are recorded in 43 separate books, and Sanders reads the city "by books." Book No. 1, which he "reads" at the first of the month, covers the East Fourth street district. The rest follow around the southern, then western, northern and northeastern part of the city—which brings him back around to East Fifth street toward the end of the month.

All the regular routes are read by bicycle. Two routes skirting the city limits are done in a car, and the business district is read with Smith pitching in to help Sanders in the business areas.

Meters are relatively foolproof, though customers occasionally tamper with them. Several different kinds of meters are used, but all work on the same principle, register water consumption in cubic feet. First of six wheels (each wheel is marked clockwise from one to 10) registers up to one cubic foot, next one registers number of cubic feet up to 10, third one registers up to 100, and so on up to 100,000, which is capacity for most meters used in Santa Ana.

Readings are recorded only down to 100 cubic feet, except in cases where closing-out bills must be made more exact. Only use for the one-cubic-foot wheel is so Sanders can spot leaks. (If no water is running and the wheel turns, it means there's a leak somewhere.)

Numerous Santa Ana accounts run into the second 100,000 each month, but most of these heavy water users are being put on meters with bigger capacity. Largest accounts in town (some run up to $100 a month) are Ameling Bros., Santa Fe railway and Santa Ana Woolen mills.

Sanders finds more of the "tampering" is to check up on the water department than an attempt to cheat by stopping the meters. Occasionally, he'll find a meter box marked as if the owner were trying to find when he actually arrived to read the gauge.

Complaints on over-billing are fairly frequent, but in majority of cases, investigation shows the exorbitant bill is because of a leak that caused the meter wheels to run continuously.

Most exaggerated case Sanders can remember is a meter that ordinarily showed around 7000 cubic feet a month registered 26,500 cubic feet one month. Check-up showed the extra 25,500 cubic feet was caused by a leaky toilet.

The customer would have complained bitterly at the $22.50 bill (his ordinary bill was the $1 minimum), except for one thing: In old days, the water department had a credit system which permitted customers who used less than the 100-cubic feet minimum to build up credits that would apply against future water usage. The particular customer who had the 26,500-foot water charge had built up a 40,000-foot surplus.

The credit system has been abolished since then, and if you were to use the much water today, you'd have to pay the $22.50 as a penalty for not having your plumbing tended to. Most leaks nowadays are fixed promptly—particularly after the first month's bill comes in.

Water charges are on a graduated scale, starting with $1 for the minimum of 1000 feet, $1 for each 1000 feet up to 4000, 80 cents per thousand up to 21,000, then 70 cents per thousand.

Average monthly water use for private homes is 800 to 600 cubic feet of water in winter, 1500 to 3000 in summer when lawns need watering.

Santa Ana has one unique quirk in its billing system, which works as a convenience to businessmen who own properties in several parts of town. When someone has two properties recorded in Sanders' book No. 1 and in book No. 30, for instance, a bill for the first property is sent out, the duplicate pigeon-holed in the No. 30 compartment, where it is combined with the bill for the property Sanders reads later in the month.

Advantage of the billing system is that big-time property owner can pay all bills at once, without making a trip to the water department for each one of them. If the separate bills were not pigeon-holed, the customer would have to pay the usual 10-cent penalty for all bills not paid within 15 days.

The water department must keep around 8000 of these "doubles," handles the task automat-

400 At Annual Chamber of Commerce-Farm Bureau Picnic

CANDIDATES BARRED FROM MAKING TALKS

ORANGE.—Four hundred guests, including numerous Orange county politicians who were limited to hand-shaking rather than speech-making, attended the 11th annual chamber of commerce farm center picnic at Irvine park last night.

Following a barbecue prepared by J. K. Duffey, Santa Ana Elks' club chef, the program opened with a brief welcome by President W. L. Hart of the chamber of commerce. Presidents of the West Orange and Foothill farm centers were introduced.

Secretary V. D. Johnson of the Orange chamber, arranged the program, which included tap dances by Lois Ransom; piano selections, and a number presented by West Orange farm center cast of Henry Hinrichs, Joe Witt and Al Schroeder. Miss Frances Parks, who has sung in many of the leading theaters of the world, also was on the program. The vaudeville features were furnished by the Roy Cope entertainment bureau of Hollywood.

Shower Is Given G. G. Bride-Elect

GARDEN GROVE.—A group of former workers in the junior department of the First Methodist church Sunday school were guests Monday afternoon of Miss Lois Miller and her mother, Mrs. E. Miller for a ceremonial shower in honor of Miss Joy Schmitzer who is to wed George Crane Aug. 7.

The party was held at the Miller home on Wright street. Shower gifts were presented to the bride-to-be in a bushel basket decorated with hearts and cupid. Guests included Miss Schmitzer, her mother and sister, Mrs. A. A. Schmitzer and Miss Fern Schmitzer. Mrs. Clara Holliday, Mrs. S. C. Oertly, Mrs. Allen Goddard, Mrs. J. M. Chilson, Miss Evelyn Blaholder, Mrs. W. E. Sullivan and daughter, Betty Jean.

Buena Park House Prowler Sought

A prowler who came back after being frightened away from a Buena Park home last night was being sought today by sheriff's officers.

Mrs. Artie Martin, route 1, Buena Park, told officers she first saw the man at 9:30 o'clock last night when she stepped out of her front porch and discovered him looking in a window. He fled through the back yard. At midnight she saw him again, and he ran away again. She described him as being short, wearing a white shirt and dark trousers.

6 Fullerton Girls At Asilomar Meet

FULLERTON.—Six district delegates of the Girl Reserves represented this city at a 10-day encampment at Asilomar, where they exchanged ideas with delegates from California, Arizona, Nevada, Utah and the Hawaiian islands.

Fullerton's delegation includes Helen Burnip, president of the high school reserves; Bonnie Jean Carlson, president, Valencia High; and Jessie Vivian Cadman, Italian Fennell and Sharlene Egeler, Fullerton.

100 at Picnic of Costa Mesa Church

COSTA MESA.—More than 100 members and friends of Costa Mesa Community church attended the recent Bible school picnic, held in Irvine park. Following a pot-luck dinner at noon, boating, horseback riding and hiking was enjoyed during the afternoon.

Chief event of the day was a fast-moving baseball game between Mrs. Ward Pilley's "Pills" and Betty Dodge's "Dodgers," the former team capturing the title with a score of 16 to 15. E. A. Rea, teacher of the Loyola Workers class, acted as umpire.

Locally through a billing machine that rings a bell everytime a "double" (identified by a red flag on the ledger card) comes through the machine.

All water meters used here work on a system of mathematically arranged gears. A hard rubber disc in the water pipe flip-flops every time so much water goes through, and the disc's shaft strikes a "T" on the meter shaft, makes it click off a fraction of a cubic foot.

Meters occasionally stop of their own accord (sand, hot water sometimes will clog the rubber disc), but they're sealed so a customer can't stop them without obviously tampering. Several dozen meters are repaired each month, usually for minor troubles.

Sanders tries to get every meter in perfect order around March or April, so no water will get through unrecorded during the summer months. Though bills always are higher, Sanders' work actually isn't much harder in summer, since it's as easy to read a 3000 figure as one for 600 cubic feet.

COSTA MESA.—Miss Julia Budlong, pastor of the Santa Ana Unitarian church, will give a public review of "Bread and Wine," by Ignazio Silone, at the Costa Mesa library Thursday July 28, according to Miss Sarah Conant, custodian. The book deals with Italian sociological problems.

IN MARINES, NOT GOLD MINE

COSTA MESA.—For months three Costa Mesa brothers, Fred and Glenn Crafts, 166 Albert Place, and Carl Crafts, 339 Walnut Place, had made plans for a gold prospecting trip into Oregon. Final arrangements were completed last week, the agreement being that Fred and Carl would go on ahead, their brother, Glenn, joining them at the "diggings" as soon as he "got some business straightened up."

Accordingly it came as considerable of a surprise when wives and other Costa Mesa relatives learned Wednesday that instead of joining the modern Argonauts in Oregon, Glenn had joined the U. S. marines in San Diego. The other two prospectors, undaunted, will continue their search for the golden fleece.

Mesa Club Meets At Lupton Home

COSTA MESA.—Mrs. Andrew Lupton, 543 Victoria street, was hostess at Tuesday's meeting of the Meet-One-Another club. Mrs. R. S. Paul, a new Costa Mesa resident, was received into membership. Refreshments were served and a social period enjoyed.

Albania had 39 kilometers for railway up to 1930.

Windmill and Barn Being Stolen, Bolsa Rancher Reports

"Somebody's stealing my windmill and barn, piece by piece," complained H. Y. Evans, Bolsa rancher, to the sheriff's office yesterday.

Deputy Sheriffs Vern Mohn and A. W. Fullerton examined the property, said it was not seriously missing yet, and promised to keep an eye on it.

Bay Family Visits

COSTA MESA.—Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Patterson, son, Robert, Jr., and daughter, Patty of Oakland, are spending two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Stewart. Several motor and fishing trips are planned for the visitors.

Cynthia Glenn is unpredictable. Hence, Peter Moore, in love with her, is not surprised by her latest "crazy scheme." In her absence, he has rented her ancestral Southern home to the newly-rich Mrs. Potter-Payne, who is trying to create a "background" for herself with the hope of marrying her daughter and son, Irene and Tommy, to an Englishman and his sister, Bruce and Beatrice Kerr, her house guests. Cynthia suddenly decides to turn author and put the Potter-Paynes in a book. Disguising herself with tortoiseshell glasses, and calling herself "Jennie Smith, a friend of Cynthia Glenn's," she persuades Mrs. Potter-Payne to hire her as secretary. One day, her aunt, Miss Kate Glenn, tells her Tommy called and asked to see a picture of Cynthia Glenn. Miss Kate said she showed him an old snapshot of Cynthia with a homely, bespectacled friend, and told him the friend was "Jennie Smith."

"What?" Cynthia gaped at her aunt. Then, she burst out laughing. "Aunt Kate, you're marvelous!"

"Then, you don't think me a wicked old woman for falsifying it at my age?"

"No I don't! Tommy deserved it—for being so snooty."

"Isn't that, my dear, a case of the pot and the kettle?"

"You're snooping around Tommy's home, you know."

"But I'm writing a book!"

"And that," said Miss Kate, with a twinkle in her eye, "excuses everything."

"Of course it does! When one starts out writing, one has to gather material."

"Anyway," said Miss Kate, "I like Tommy. I hope you are treating him kindly in the book."

"Oh, I am! Don't worry. He's the comic relief."

"I should think his mother would supply all the comedy you need," Miss Kate chuckled. "I'll never get over her claiming Susan and Heskiah as her own ancestors!"

Cynthia turned back to her work, and typed away at a rapid rate for some time.

Then, she rose to leave. She said she had to get back home to see that Mary and Walters managed the evening meal satisfactorily.

"Are they improving any, those two?" Miss Kate asked.

"Slowly. It's only when Mary gets too busy watching Walters that she bumbles things."

"Why should she watch him so constantly? You've referred to that before."

"I don't know. I suppose that, being his wife, she is naturally anxious for him to do everything correctly. But I get the feeling it's not entirely that. She looks sometimes as though she were afraid."

"What of?"

"I couldn't say, Aunt Kate. Maybe it's just your imagination."

Cynthia shrugged. "Probably."

As she was walking home along the highway, Tommy came by in his car, his way back to his town. He drew up beside her. "Want a lift?"

"Yes, thank you," said Cynthia. "Your dinner will be late if I don't hurry."

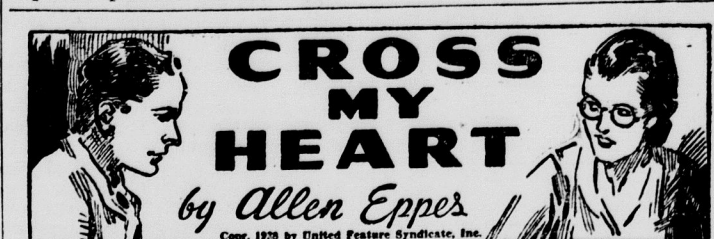

She climbed into the car beside him.

D. W. TUBBS MAKES REPORT

D. W. Tubbs, county agricultural commissioner, made a report to his deputies at a meeting in Anaheim last night on information of interest to the agricultural industry in this county which he obtained during a trip to the East. During the same session Deputy Commissioner Kenneth Sloop explained recommendations on controlling pests in this area during the summer months. Tubbs and his deputies met at the Orange county insensary.

VETERANS TO MEET

ANAHEIM.—Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliary will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Odd Fellows hall.

"I went into town to get some special fertilizer for the roses," he told her.

"You love those roses, don't you?"

"Yes, I do. I like the way they respond to my work." Tommy glanced at her. "Have you written your friend Miss Glenn about the care I'm taking of her place?"

"What? Oh, yes, of course! She knows all about the clipped hedges, the mowed lawn, and the repaired greenhouse."

"Is she pleased?"

"I should say so! She thinks you are splendid to take such an interest in her old place."

"I suppose she thought I was just an idle son of the rich?"

"Cynthia nodded. "It's a surprise to me, too, to find you such an energetic young man."

Tommy gazed straight ahead. "I like working. If I had had my own fortune, I might be really happy."

"Aren't you really happy?"

"Not altogether." Then, he brightened. "But do you know what I think would make me that way?"

"What?"

"Owning a place like the Glenn homestead." He slowed the car. "I'll tell you a secret. I've been driving around the country lately, looking at farms."

"What for?"

"Oh, just in case I might want to buy one."

Cynthia stared at him. "Do you mean you're thinking of settling down here?"

"Yes."

Cynthia wondered what his mother and Beatrice Kerr would think of that. She couldn't picture Beatrice marrying a farmer!

"Did you find a farm to your liking?" she asked.

"One or two. But I'd rather own the Glenn place. Do you suppose you could persuade Miss Glenn to sell it?"

"I might."

Although Cynthia had often thought of the old place as a burden and a care, she now felt a sudden pang at the thought of selling it.

"By the way," she said. "I spent the afternoon with Miss Kate Glenn. She tells me you dropped in yesterday."

"Yes, I did. She's swell!"

"She thinks you're pretty nice too."

"Good! I'm glad of that."

"Uh... what did you think of Cynthia Glenn's picture?" asked Cynthia.

"Oh, she told you about that, didn't she?"

"Yes

IN PALESTINE, THE HOLY LAND—"Holy" to Moslems, Jews and Christians who for centuries have lived there, each group retaining its own customs—is Tel Aviv, a street of which is shown above. Tel Aviv, all-Jewish city, has been established about 26 years, has a population close to 125,000, and is near Jaffa. Move to Fight Nye Resolution

A finish fight against seizure by the federal government of the fabulous offshore oil pool at Huntington Beach and other tideland pools in California was pledged today with formal incorporation of the United Landowners Association, Inc. Many Orange county oil men are represented in the organization, convinced that the Nye resolution, providing for the U. "The original agitation to have the federal government assert title to California tidelands," the association announced, "did not come from the federal government itself . . . a group of individuals who . . . have regularly been filing applications for permits to tidelands, particularly in Huntington Beach, and who just as regularly have been turned down by the department of the interior . . . turned to political activity . . ."

ARSON CASE UP FRIDAY

Mrs. Margaret May Davis, 64-year-old beauty shop proprietor, will be arraigned tomorrow in superior court on arson charges resulting from the burning of a building she occupied June 28.

Mrs. Davis was ordered held to answer to the higher court yesterday afternoon by Justice of the Peace Kenneth Morrison, following an all-day preliminary hearing including much cross-examination of witnesses by Loren Smith, defense attorney.

Two weeks of investigation into a fire at the South Main street beauty shop Mrs. Davis occupied led to her arrest last Thursday by Assistant Fire Chief Elmer Gates and Fire Marshal Frank Corey, both of whom testified at yesterday's justice court hearing.

Gates said he smelled kerosene in a locked closet where fire had charred the walls and molding, and said there were three separate fires in the building, all extinguished before much damage was done. The building belongs to Frank Ey, but Gates said Mrs. Davis had approximately $1600 insurance on its contents.

The defendant is free on $2500 bond pending arraignment in the higher court.

Too Many Running
For Voting Machine

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP)—This city has been using voting machines for several years, but citizens will mark their ballots with pencils in the August primary.

So many candidates filed for county committeemen there isn't room on the machines for all their names plus those of other candidates.

BOOKMAKING ROUNDUP

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Arrest of five men today marked raids by the district attorney's office in enforcing the state bookmaking law.

Want to vote in the Aug. 30 primary election? If so, and if you're not registered, only a few hours are left to get your name on the dotted line.

County Clerk B. J. Smith said today he would keep his office open until 9 p. m. to accommodate late comers. After that the best a voter can do is register for the Nov. 8 general election. Tonight's the primary deadline. Smith expects an all-time high total of nearly 68,000 voters to be registered in the county when he checks his records tomorrow.

At the time of his last official checkup there were 66,200 registered voters, beating the previous 1936 all-time high by nearly 1000 registrations.

Registration is required, Smith emphasized, if the voter has moved since voting last or has allowed his registration to lapse by not voting since before the 1936 election.

Playgrounds Give Exercise, Amusement
To Hundreds Of Santa Ana Children

"Yaaa, look at 'im. He swings like a old rusty gate," a little tyke out at shortstop shrieks.

But you don't hear him unless you're close up, because a dozen other young fellows romping around on the third base line are filling the air with hoots and peculiar noises which make Lefty out in the box toss the next one pretty wild.

You're not much surprised to see the ball come over wild, though, because Lefty isn't much bigger than the ball.

Anyway, it's ball four, and Slim, who just swung like a rusty gate, gets his walk. A little while later someone pops one out into right field, and Slim scampers across the plate just as if he had to hurry to make it.

KEPT OUT OF TROUBLE

It goes on for a few more innings, and the ball game's over. Our side loses, 15 to 7, and it's lunch-time, so the kids go home to lunch.

But they'll be back this afternoon. And when they go home again they'll be all tired out—they won't be out getting into trouble tonight.

That's why you always find a few cops hanging around the city bowl and Santiago park the days they have ball games for the kids. They know kids are pretty easy to keep track of—and to keep on the right side—when they're busy playing ball.

Baseball, the way it's played in the park league—where grammar school kids get in one league, "big boys" up to 15 years compete in the other—is athletics in the purest form. But it's serious business.

You'll know it's business first time there's a close play, or something that looks like a shenanigan. Yesterday the police department motor squad's own club was tangle with the city garage team, for instance. The garage crew just knocked the cops' pitcher out of the box, and Coach Harry Adams put in a relief pitcher.

"Hey, look who's pitchin'," a troubled little worry-wart over on the garage-sponsored team's bench yelled to his mates. "The size of that guy—why, he must be 15 years old."

Pretty soon an umpire ruled the relief man would qualify.

"Oh, well, he probably can't pitch, anyway," shrugged the disconsolate worry-wart.

That's the way it goes—a beef, then the ump settles it, and all the kids stand by his decision. Because if they don't they might not get to play any more. Sportsmanship is the first thing the supervisors on Santa Ana's 14 summer playgrounds are trying to teach the youngsters.

The new city playground set-up, started last April as what may develop into a year-around city-sponsored program, provides supervision, equipment and fun for an average daily attendance of 1500 children during these vacation days.

Two hundred forty of the youngsters are signed up in the two ball leagues. But that's just one of the activities. Others do handicraft work, play volleyball or croquet, shoot bows and arrows, or play quieter games like checkers and shuffle-board.

In the baseball leagues, each team has a sponsor and a coach. Main thing the sponsor does is furnish caps and sweaters—the kids don't have much trouble doing the rest.

Chief of the playground set-up is Lieut. E. A. Hershey, head of the police motor squad, and it's appropriate that the police should be in charge of things, since Hershey insists this summer's supervised play has unquestionably cut down both delinquency and accidents among youngsters.

"They're too busy to get into the streets in the day time," he points out, "and too tired to do it at night."

Hershey's squad itself is sponsoring a ball club in the junior league, and if you watch the team members play once, you're bound to get some idea what the program is doing.

They played—and lost, 15-7—yesterday. It was their first first game in the league, and they were still a bit "rough." But the teamwork was perfect—mentally, if not physically. Tall kids and short ones, black kids and white ones, towheads and redheads—they looked more like "Our Gang" than "Our Gang" ever did, and never once did they complain among themselves. They were too busy heckling the other side, even while they were behind.

Made possible by federal financing, the recreation program employs 45 supervisors, has a monthly payroll of $2970. All 14 playgrounds are manned by a police crossing-guard, who escorts the youngsters across streets and keeps "suspicious characters" off the grounds.

One crossing guard had to march a "bully" across the city bowl by his arm and order him off the grounds until he could be a gentleman. He was back in two days, and now he gets along fine. There haven't been any other troublesome bullies.

FEW PUNISHED

A few youngsters have been punished by being kept off the grounds for two or three hours or days, depending on how seriously they misbehaved.

There are no age rules for anything but the baseball leagues. In one of the handicraft centers, one "girl" enrollee is 81 years old. The two handicraft centers—one at 403½ West Fourth street, the other in room 305, city hall—are mostly for adults, since youngsters can do their handiwork on the various school grounds and parks.

Playgrounds in Santiago park and the city bowl are open from 8:30 a. m. to 3 p. m. six days a week, and the school grounds stay open from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m.

SOUTH LAGUNA DISTRICT
DENIES LOBBYIST CHARGES,
REGAINS PWA MONEYContract Not Made With Miller,
Administrator Ickes Told

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Administrator Ickes tentatively freed a California community today from suspicion of having hired a lobbyist to secure PWA funds for a waterworks project.

He announced he had restored the project to an active status upon receipt of formal assurances, subject to final confirmation, from the south coast county water district, of South Laguna, that it had refused the services of Glenn E. Miller in behalf of an $83,535 application. The project was the first to be cleared of suspicion since Ickes ordered the suspension last week of eight California projects and declared he wanted to learn whether Miller had any connection with them. Previously, he had suspended an application from Riverside, Cal., when it was discovered, Ickes said, that the city had paid Miller $1000 to lobby for a sewer project.

Ickes acted on the South Laguna application upon receipt of the following telegram from the water district:

"Your stand on employment of paid lobbyists for securing of PWA grants heartily approved. You are under misapprehension regarding employment of such service by south coast water district. Correspondence with Mr. Miller but no money paid or contracted to be paid. Services formally refused at board meeting July 7 and Mr. Miller so notified."

Suit Filed to Win
Attorney's Fee

Suit for a $67.70 attorney's fee was brought today in Santa Ana justice court against Mary E. Paul Arnold. Plaintiff was Koepke's Collection agency, which got the claim on assignment from R. C. Mize, Santa Ana attorney and original creditor. The suit is for a total of $72.84, including interest.

NEW STAMP ON SALE

A special issue of 3-cent stamps commemorating the opening of Northwest territory are on sale at the Santa Ana postoffice today. Stamp collectors are urged to obtain them immediately as the supply is limited.

BAND WILL BE ORGANIZED IN
S. A. COLLEGE

An enlarged and more comprehensive music department, including a marching band unit, is being planned for the fall term at Santa Ana Junior college.

It will be the first time since organization in 1915 that the junior college will have a marching band, which will be outfitted in bright uniforms and will march between halves of football games. An orchestra will be organized under the direction of Alan A. Bevil, who also will head the band.

One of the major changes will be the transfer of the A Capella choir rehearsals from evening to day classes.

Both the choir and men's and women's choruses will make a number of public appearances throughout the county during the year, Director D. K. Hammond announced. This will augment the previous practice of supplying soloists and music numbers for numerous club programs, he said.

Full graduation and degree credit are given for the junior college courses. The curricula consists of a wide range of subjects in music including opera production, choruses for men and women, music history and appreciation, harmony, voice, advanced voice, musicianship, quartet practice, radio practice, intermediate instruments, band, orchestra, elementary piano, intermediate piano, advanced harmony, and applied music.

Miss Myrtle A. Martin is head of the music department. Aug. 15 is the final deadline when applications for admission should be in the hands of the registrar. Freshman Days are Sept. 6, 7, and 8.

Again Weissmuller
Is Sued by Lupe

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—The third divorce suit of Lupe Velez, Mexican movie actress, against Johnny Weissmuller, movie Tarzan and former swimming champion, was on file today. She charged mental cruelty.

Two previous suits, filed in 1934 and 1935, were dropped.

Lupe said in her complaint filed yesterday that Johnny was cruel and morose, snubbed her friends and was unreasonably jealous of her.

Husband Loses Suit
For Heart Balm

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Francis Erskine Thompson, former Seattle house painter, was loser today in an attempt to collect $100,000 for the alleged theft of his 21-year-old wife's love.

Superior Judge George Bullock held for the defendant, Ben Gray, wealthy apartment house owner.

"Love in this case was lost before the theft was supposed to have occurred," the woman jurist said.

Joe Stupp Lives, Detective
Wolford, and If You Don't Believe it, Ask Joe Stupp

Joe G. Stupp, Yorba Linda rancher, will be irked when he hears about this:

According to Detective Lieut. Charles Wolford of the Santa Ana police department, there isn't any such person.

Wolford signed a complaint against Joe Morales, 19-year-old Atwood laborer, for issuing a fictitious check for $24.85 which he assertedly passed to the G. M. C. Truck company. Morales pleaded guilty before Justice Kenneth Morrison yesterday afternoon and was certified to superior court for sentence.

The complaint Wolford signed, a stock form for fictitious check complaints, alleged Morales signed the name "J. G. Stupp" to the check, "knowing that there was no such person."

Stupp, very much a person, had proved it by filing a $20,000 auto accident damage suit in superior court that very morning.

DEATH TAKES JOHN FISHER

John Fisher, of Seal Beach, Calif., died at his home last night after a lingering illness. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 from the chapel parlors of Patterson and McQuiklan, 555 Locust avenue, in Long Beach.

Deceased was born in 1864. The greater part of his life was spent in Keokuk, Iowa, where he was a member of the city fire department. He retired as a pensioner and later moved to California, settling Seal Beach as his home.

The survivors are Mrs. Fisher, daughter Elsie, of Seal Beach, and son, Carl, linotype operator for the Santa Ana Journal.

RACE RESULTS
READY FRIDAY

Final results of The Journal Courtesy and Efficiency Contest will be announced in tomorrow afternoon's Journal.

Counting and re-checking the ballots cast for the 110 nominees has been completed, and a committee of three prominent Santa Ana civic leaders today were conducting an audit of the standings of the winners.

Nominees standing in the eight highest positions on the courtesy roll at the close of a contest, less than a week ago, will be awarded prizes through the courtesy of The Journal from the stage of the Broadway theater at a time tentatively set for Monday evening.

Insull's Body to Be Sent to London

PARIS. (AP)—The body of Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate, who died Saturday, will be sent to London tomorrow for burial either tomorrow or Saturday in the Putney Vale cemetery.

It has been in the mortuary chapel of the American Cathedral church since yesterday. Burial in London, Insull's birthplace, will be beside his father and mother.

BIDS ASKED ON PRADO DAM

The U. S. Army engineer's office in Los Angeles will advertise for bids on the massive Prado dam construction project within a few days, it was revealed today following a checkup on the "apparent delay" of plans.

Plans for the dam have been put in final form and no further delay is anticipated before construction gets under way, Congressman Harry R. Sheppard said after contacting the chief engineer in Washington.

"Slight changes in plans and specifications" were cited as the reason for the delay so far, but these have been completed and the Los Angeles office instructed to call for bids.

EXTENSION OF
DRAIN FAVORED

Extension of the East Richfield storm drain, completed last year at total cost of $100,000, was authorized today by the Public Works administration in a $9315 allocation in federal money to be paid the Orange county flood control district.

The federal money will be used along with about $10,000 of county money, with the job done by a contractor. Flood Control Engineer M. N. Thompson said he has not yet received official notification of the fund allocation, and cannot ask immediate advertising for bids until he receives formal notice from Washington.

Rev. Rex Barr to Talk Here Tonight

The Rev. Rex B. Barr of Long Beach, prominent old age pension speaker, will speak at the Santa Ana General Welfare center meeting in the Unitarian church at 7:45 p. m. tonight. The meeting is open to the public.

HARWOOD AT CONVENTION
Postmaster Frank Harwood will return to Santa Ana at the close of this week from the Lions club convention at San Francisco.

CANDIDATES TO BREAKFAST WITH CLUBMEN

Candidates for office will be invited to attend the breakfast club meeting next Thursday morning, accompanied by the guarantee there will be no fines, which should take none of the joy out of life. The breakfasters want to get acquainted with the candidates. If they are able to pay for their breakfast, that will be the limit of the financial requirement.

Capt. T. D. Miller of the Fire department, and his assistant, Paul Reynolds, explained the mechanics of the resuscitation and inhalation machine, a combination machine which the department has been using for sometime, and from which they have been able to get better than a 55 per cent successful result. The demonstrators were introduced by Eddie Marble, who commented on the tendency to criticize fire and police departments, but hesitant about bestowing compliments. He said the men on the fire and police departments who were equipping themselves for first aid cases, did so on their own time.

The musical part of the program was by Betty Jane Koster in song and dance numbers, accompanied by Miss Esther Shields, from the Meglin Studios.

The retiring president, Hunter Leach, was the recipient of the club's appreciation, the gift being a diamond tie pin. The presentation speech was by Eddie Marble.

WESTWOOD'S MILLS REOPEN

WESTWOOD. (P) — Plant whistles called approximately 1800 employees of the Red River Lumber company to work today, coincident with the arrival of several sheriff's deputies in anticipation of an influx of between 200 and 300 CIO workers and their families who were driven from the town July 13.

Most of the lumbering town, on edge since the "purge" of CIO members, flocked hurriedly to the scene of a fire late last night when the whistles blew.

The fire broke out in a small house and damaged the building considerably before spreading to the roofs of two adjoining dwellings.

So far as could be ascertained, there was no planned resistance to greet the return of the CIO members from Sacramento and the company announced that men who wished to work would be reemployed.

Governor Grounded Because He Didn't Obey Instructor

HARRISBURG, Pa. (P) — Grounded for two weeks for disobeying his flying instructor by making a flight that ended in a crackup, Governor George H. Earle said thoughtfully today "I have learned a valuable lesson—just like any schoolboy does."

Colonel Camille Vinet, young chief of the state aeronautics bureau, temporarily suspended the 47-year-old governor's flying privileges last night with an admonition to Earle to "use better judgment next time."

The governor, confident with 110 hours in the air and a student pilot's license, started out yesterday on a practicing flight from Harrisburg airport under Vinet's instructions to "circle the field."

Some time later, lost in the storm, the flying governor grounded the ship on the campus of a woman's college near Philadelphia.

IOWA STRIKERS EXPECT HELP FROM COUNTY

NEWTON, Iowa. (P) — Strikers under Newton remained peaceful under martial rule today, as some of the 1400 Maytag factory employees, idle since May 9, anticipated immediate relief aid from Jasper county.

When the starting bell clanged in the empty plant this morning, only a few maintenance men passed through the national guard sentry lines into the building. The usual force of 100 office workers was admitted, but production units of the plant remained closed.

Union men and onlookers were conspicuously absent in the area surrounding the plant.

As commander in chief of the Iowa national guard, Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel late yesterday ordered ranking officers of his staff to administer relief to "qualified relief clients" in Newton on the same basis as relief is administered in other sections of the state.

The Jasper county relief office here recently announced it would not grant any further relief aid to strikers at the washing machine company plant. At one time the office was shut down completely for a brief period.

Former Residents Of Utah To Picnic At Ocean Park

OCEAN PARK. (P) — Former residents of Utah will celebrate Pioneer day, the Utah state holiday, with a picnic here next Saturday at which a pageant of the early history of the Beehive state will be presented.

The Utah State society, the Daughters of Pioneers and presidents of five Southern California stakes of the Latter Day Saints church will be in charge, under the general chairmanship of O. H. Hewlett.

Prizes will be awarded to members of the largest family present. Twelve thousand former Utahns are expected to attend, Hewlett said.

Boy Hangs Himself When Pleas for Play Are Denied

NEW YORK. (P) — It was raining and Walter Wagner, 14, asked his sister, Catherine, 16, if he could join his playmates, splashing outside in the street.

"No," she said. "Can I work the player piano then?" he asked.

"No," said his sister. Crying, Walter locked himself in the basement. An older brother found him there an hour later hanging from a clothesline, dead.

TOWNSEND NEWS, VIEWS

By WALTER R. ROBB

(This column deals with Townsend news and views. Any opinions which are expressed herein are not necessarily those of The Journal.)

Carl Newell Sanborn, of Orange and local representative of the Panther Oil and Grease Manufacturing company of Ft. Worth, Tex., is credited with being the leading booster in Orange county for a salesman's crusade with a slogan "Sales Mean Jobs" that is being nationally promoted. The claim is, that where the movement has gotten underway sales have been greatly increased, resulting in more jobs, more work, more enthusiasm and more prosperity for everyone in the community.

Slowly but surely the idea of the Townsend National Recovery plan is taking root in the minds of America's business men as this crusade to increase sales indicates. From the beginning of the Townsend movement the claim has been that "Sales Mean Jobs" and the purpose of the Townsend movement is for the purpose of creating more jobs through the increased sales which the Townsend movement in circulation will make certain.

When things are sold there is resultant need of creating more things to be sold which inevitably results in more work and more jobs, and that is what is needed to bring national recovery. The writer heard a well-known Los Angeles minister during his delivery of a sermon on the radio say, last Sunday, that "We will never have economic recovery in this nation until we have a wide diffusion of purchasing power." That is another way of saying that "Sales Mean Jobs" and harmonizes perfectly with Townsend economics.

There is considerable difference however, in a promotion sales program which must necessarily depend for its success upon the enthusiasm of its sponsors plus a limited buying power which is resident with the general public and that of the program which the Townsend National Recovery plan envisions and sponsors. The one must necessarily in time run its course because there is no foundation for its continuance, whereas the Townsend plan proposes to make certain the kind of prosperity it sponsors, by providing for a constant and unceasing large volume of purchasing power widely diffused among the nation's citizens.

Included in the Townsend National Recovery plan is a provision for the retirement of the elderly from the gainful places of employment, yet there is invested with them a consuming ability so useful to our industrial age. Through the elderly retired it is planned to distribute a purchasing power which will aggregate from $1,000,000,000 to $1,500,000,000 monthly when the Townsend plan gets into full swing. If "Sales

U. S. TAXES SOON ARE DUE

Federal taxes are due again, warned Collector Nat Rogan today.

July 31 is the deadline for a number of tax payments, Rogan said. Social Security Old Age Insurance taxes for the period April 1-June 30 are due. Also due are monthly manufacturers' excise taxes, capital stock taxes, a special liquor floor tax, and the various special liquor taxes due annually.

A branch office is located here in the federal building, where deputy collectors are on hand to advise taxpayers regarding forms.

Illinois Picnic in L.B. Saturday

Last call for former Illinois residents to gather in Long Beach Saturday was issued by Lin Price, president of the Illinois association of Southern California.

County registers will be open all day in Bixby park, with hot coffee served, lunches on sale, souvenir badges furnished and programs scheduled after picnic dinners. Dr. R. B. Von Klein Smid, president of the University of Southern California, Judge Parker Wood and Mrs. Mabel Socha will be the speakers.

Orange club No. 2 meets each Friday evening in the local Townsend club building at 131 South Glassell street for its meetings. Mrs. Abbie Gould is president and will preside over the business session to be held at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow evening.

The Anaheim club No. 1 is meeting in the 224 East Center street Townsend headquarters building this evening at 7:30 with Mrs. Ida A. Freeman in charge. Mayor C. T. Johnson of San Bernardino, Republican - Townsend endorsed candidate for congress, will be the speaker.

The Huntington Beach club No. 1 is meeting in Memorial hall at Sixth and Magnolia streets at 7:30 p. m. this evening for a business meeting with A. D. Marshall in charge.

Santa Ana club No. 3 is meeting at 7:30 p. m. this evening in Townsend hall with Phillip S. Doolittle in charge of a business meeting. Next week a speaker will be present.

Roberta Schmale is on her way back to Kansas or will be by the time this column will be read by my readers. She spoke in the new Riverside Townsend hall located at 3469 Main street last Tuesday evening to another large gathering. The writer was in San Bernardino that evening on Townsend business and stopped at the Riverside headquarters on the way back after the meeting was over and learned that the Riverside Townsendites are just as enthusiastic about Miss Schmale as we are here in Orange county. She will be speaking at a large Townsend mass meeting in Colorado Springs next Sunday afternoon. From there she goes to her home in Garden City, Kan.

J. E. McDonald to Talk Monday Night

J. E. MacDonald, a member of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, affiliated with the A. F. of L., will speak on "Labor Situations" at a meeting in the Olson-for-Governor headquarters, 608 North Main street, Monday evening, according to Col. Waller L. Lowe, Olson's campaign manager for Orange county.

NEW EXPRESS MANAGER HERE

Transferred from the Long Beach office, Herman C. Neuman has taken over his new duties as Santa Ana agent for the Railway Express Agency, Inc., it was revealed today.

Neuman is succeeding Hugh W. Lee as local agent for the express company. The former agent has been transferred to the Los Angeles office as city route agent.

Employed by the express company for 26 years, Neuman now resides with his wife and 12-year-old son at 521 South Parton street.

O'CONNELL'S LEAD GROWS

HELENA, Mont. (P) — Rep. Jerry J. O'Connell, victor in the first district race for the Democratic congressional nomination, held a lead of 6293 votes today over the nearest opponent in final unofficial figures.

The staunch New Dealer and self-styled emissary of President Roosevelt to "defeat Senator Wheeler's machine" in Montana, rolled up 25.2 per cent of the 413 first district precincts.

Templeton, Helena, O'Connell's nearest opponent, had 19,003.

GLENDALF MAN SUICIDE SAN BERNARDINO. (P) — Robert C. Quisenberry, Glendale, who died of exhaust fumes in his automobile near Yucaipa yesterday, was listed as a suicide by the coroner's office.

FILM ACTOR'S BROTHER DIES SANTA MONICA. (P) — Funeral arrangements were made today for Major Thomas A. Young, 46, brother of the film actor, Robert Young.

Charley Grimm Is Out!

Hartnett's In

That's swell news from Montreal . . . Couple of weeks ago the fans up there were afraid Rabbit Maranville's scalp . . . Now they're packing the park (10,000 of them last night) to cheer him and the Royals . . . The team has gone unbeaten in nine games, which is plenty of baseball in any league . . . And they couldn't have done it without grand old man of the old Rag.

Looks like Fred Wolcott of Rice, who is just about the classiest hurdler the Southwest produced in years, can win anywhere . . . He captured the 110-meter high hurdles in 14.2 in Stockholm yesterday . . . That's slightly faster than crawling, comrades.

Well, that situation at Chicago is finally ironed out . . .

COUNTY NINES CLASH AGAIN

Wendroff's fielders' choice not brought in another in the second.

Eliste got one in the first on Armand Hanson's double and George Preble's single. The Truckers won the game in the second when Joe Ortega singled; Walt Williams put one into right.

MAPLE-LEAF EMBLEM

Because they once played an important military role for British soldiers in the War of 1812, maple leaves were selected as the national emblem of Canada.

When the English were fighting the French in the north woods, their scarlet jackets made an easy target for the enemy. Consequently, they slit their tunics and inserted sprays of maple leaves to camouflage themselves, enabling them to advance under concealment.

Fifty years later the British government placed the device of three maple leaves of the regimental color of a Canadian corps called the Prince of Wales regiment.

CHURCH THAT STRUCK OIL... When, some forty years ago, the Methodist Community church of Santa Fe Springs, Calif., located on the site it still occupies today, little did the good church fathers realize they were standing over one of the world's richest oil pools.

Royalties began to flow in; the church's treasury increased to fabulous sums for its size. Today it has no debts and a steady income from the oil royalties speaks well for its future.

Tomorrow: The wolf that terrorized a nation!

Plenty of Room

The ideal of an economic structure composed of a nation of "little fellows" battling each other for their neighbor's trade in a state of unrestrained competition receives a serious setback in a most recent Brookings Institution report. "Pure competition," says the report of the private and unbiased research organization, "is not the path to economic progress in an industrial age."

A competitive battle between industrial giants means more in the way of reduced prices and increased standards of living than a continuous free-for-all among a great army of "little fellows," the report plainly indicates.

"The battle between the three giants in the automobile field sets the high mark of economically useful competition that our system has thus far presented," says the report.

"But the competitive struggle amongst the leading chemical companies, the great mail order houses, the leading food chains, the principal electrical concerns and many others is of the same general order."

Meanwhile, while industrial giants are battling, the U. S. department of commerce reports, as of 1933, "a great increase in the number of small scale retailing establishments over 1929."

Added up, it seems to mean that there is a place in the American scheme of things for both big business and little business, actively competing: Which is what we've been thinking all along.

The crew on the cruiser Houston must be getting their fill of fish. The President's party yesterday caught 130 averaging between 10 and 20 pounds each—and certainly they are not letting the fish go to waste.

Sen. Byrd on Guard

Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, outstanding senate critic of the New Deal, and whose opposition is well reasoned and unquestionably sincere, reduces to elements the governmental reorganization fight which he successfully led, and which is scheduled for another debate in the next session of congress.

Senator Byrd refers to the executive branch of the government as "the spending branch," which it undeniably is. Defeat of the reorganization bill at the last session of congress, under pressure from the public, he refers to as "a mandate of the American people."

"That mandate," he says, "should stand out like a red light against launching another program in the name of reorganization, which, at the outset, proposes abolition of the general accounting office, and the transfer to the executive (spending) branch of the teeth of this expenditure watchdog, which was created by congress to prescribe government bookkeeping and accounting and audit expenditures of congressional appropriations. . . . Add the possibilities of the resulting kind of a fiscal check to the currently popular practice of lump appropriations running into tens of billions of dollars."

Senator Byrd has many another argument, equally weighty and equally sincere, but this one against turning over the national treasury, unguarded, to "the spending branch" is in itself sufficiently convincing.

Prove It, Mister

Ponce de Leon did not find his fountain of perpetual youth, but along comes Herbert Beyers, manager of the Northwest Turkey Growers' association, with the startling declaration that one of mankind's other eternal quests has found its fruition.

"Turkeys," said Mr. Beyers, "are going to be streamlined. The redesigned birds will grow faster and will have more choice portions of dark meat as well as better pieces of white meat."

Since the first wild bronze gobbler gobbled his derision at the poor marksmanship of the first American colonists and their blunderbusses, it has been the dream of every turkey raiser and of every American housewife to produce and to obtain turkeys which "have more choice portions of dark meat as well as better pieces of white meat."

And now, it is promised, that happy day has arrived, and there will be enough of both dark meat and white meat to satisfy all assembled at the holiday festive board. Honestly, it's going to be all we can do to wait until Thanksgiving day.

Uncle Sam, Mortgagee

All, as we used to say when we were kids and tossed sand or water into the air, all that goes up must come down. Which is just a kid's way of paying tribute to the law of compensation.

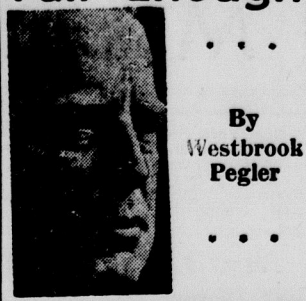

The town of Point Pleasant, W. Va., may find half its homes bearing a United States government "plaster" or lien shortly because it has not repaid any part of a PWA sewer system loan—and has neglected to pay interest.

"Borrow it from the gutter" has become a most popular slogan in the last few years. Hardly a town or hamlet but has taken the magic shekels for some local improvement or other.

Now Uncle Sam, world's No. 1 mortgagee, is preparing to crack down. "Foreclosures and sales will follow, if necessary, to collect the debt," declares the assistant U. S. district attorney for the area that includes Point Pleasant.

All that goes up must come down. All that's borrowed must sooner or later be repaid. Even easy-going old Uncle Sam will call for a day of reckoning.

Fair Enough

NEW YORK — The most provocative editorial that I have read in a year was the one in which the New York Daily News, a New Deal paper, proposed an investigation of the press. There was one bug in it. That was where Capt. Joe Patterson, the editor and prop.

He said Alva Johnston's article in the Saturday Evening Post entitled "Jimmy's Got It" in effect accused the president and Jimmy of being crooks and grafters—a conclusion with which I disagree, believing that at the very worst they have only been measured alongside the president's own expressed concept of ethical official conduct and that the decision as to whether they do or don't measure up has been left to the people. He puts the tape on other people's ethics, and their morals, too, doesn't he?

It Wouldn't Work
An investigation of the press would not be an answer. The investigation would defeat its own purpose if it were offered as an answer, because any publisher or publicist who got his bib caught in the wringer would holler "Persecution!" and "Lese Majesty!" and play off the motive against the results.

But, aside from this stipulation, I agree with the captain's idea and offer as a constructive amendment a suggestion that the investigation by all means include an inquiry into the foreign press of this country, which is a mystery to all of us non-foreigners or monolingualists and might be promoting sedition under foreign subsidy given in the form of money or official honors from European dictators.

These papers circulate in little clots of foreign-minded Americans, hyphen-Americans and anti-Americans, and it would be consistent with the investigation to see from their files what they have been saying about the country which is their host. And if this investigation is to go into the financial life of the American press, on a pawl for obligations which might impose hidden but potent motives for their editorial policies, our foreign press should be similarly inspected. Our religious press, too. Let's make it a party.

Who Will Do It?
Offhand I can't think of enough high-minded statesmen in both houses of congress to make a quorum for such an investigating body, but we would have to stand for whatever we got in the way of personnel, even though it included Minton of Indiana. Otherwise we would seem to be saying that investigation would be all right but that our business is so noble and sensitive that men don't exist who are fit to ask us questions and that, therefore, to our great regret, we would have to forego the pleasure of vindicating our honor.

I wish I knew the precise location of the go-to-hell point in such investigations at which a witness is justified in telling a senator to go and kiss a pig, because some of these investigators, when they start taking a victim to town, do take fiendish joy in chasing him up Main street with his pants on his arm. But old Doc Townsend told them to go to and, although they gave him 30 days in the flea bag, public opinion was such that the statesmen finally flinched and the doctor was pardoned.

I disagree with Capt. Patterson where he states a belief that the great majority of anti-New Deal newspapers and magazines are trying to build up a fanatical hatred of the president. That of itself is an incitation to the class hatred and the disastrous consequences which the Daily News foresees unless the boll is lanced by a press investigation.

Don't Do It
The only square way to reply to the anti-New Deal editorial matter is to refute each criticism, remembering always that there is not and shouldn't be any law or obligation requiring a publisher or editorial commentator to approve all or any part of the New Deal or to refrain from criticizing all or any part of it.

According to Patterson's argument here, the only way to prevent disastrous consequences is to shut up about the New Deal and fall back on the old "swat the fly" and "crime must go" editorial formula. I submit that this is the most common and most arrogant error of the New Deal and its editorial supporters: that if you don't agree with them you are dangerous and probably a louse.

The popularity of Balboa among Sunday excursionists by auto has reached such proportions that parking of the machines has, in a measure, become a problem. Yesterday, every street within a reasonable distance of the center of the business and amusement center of the resort was congested with the motor vehicles.

The big rush for Balboa Beach started Saturday night when the second entertainment event arranged by the Booster club of Balboa, East Newport and Balboa Island was staged. It was a grand illuminated parade of water craft. About fifty decorated boats participated in the event. The gaily decorated boats made a circle of the bay.

The board of equalization today reduced the assessment on 2250 acres of the Bastanchury Ranch company's property $25 per acre, a total of $56,250. The assessment on the remainder of the property stands as it was.

Stamps in the News

By the AP
Feature Service

BULGARIA is doing a little advertising of her industries and products via the well known postage stamp route.

But the "ads" are attractive looking stamps which no general collector would hesitate to place in his album.

The series includes: Ten - stotinki, harvesting 15-s. sunflower culture; 30-s. wheat, one stamp printed in brown; 50-s. chickens and eggs, one in black, another in midnight blue; 1-leva, ranching; 3-leva, strawberry farming; 4-leva, vineyards, showing a peasant girl holding two huge bunches of grapes, one stamp wine red, the other light brown; 7-leva, rose growing; 14-leva, tobacco growing.

BRESLAU 'SPORTFEST'
Landmarks of Breslau, the Silesian capital, adorn a short set to be issued by Germany for the German Turners' meeting which will be held there July 24-31.

These stamps will be steel-engraved and unwatermarked. They will bear the inscription "Breslau 1938 German Turners' and Sports Festival," with the emblem of the Nazi athletic organization in the lower left corner.

The 3-pennig shows a scene of Cathedral island in the Oder river; 6-pf. the "Herman Goering sports field"; and 15-pf. the Breslau exposition grounds.

PLANS THREE SETS
The spate of war issues from Spain continues this month with three new series and a special postcard scheduled to appear in Barcelona. The loyalist postcard marking the civil war second anniversary, is due July 19.

A series on the theme of liberty is to be issued at the same time. These stamps have been designed by Alfonso Rodriguez, Catalao, famed Goyaesque artist, known lately for his fascist horror posters called "Attila in Galicia."

Two more series of commemoratives are to be issued July 20, according to present plans. The first set, of which a million are to be printed, is to honor the much-bombed city of Sagunto. The second will honor Colonel Bertran's famed 43rd division.

KEEPER OF KING'S STAMPS
One of England's famous philatelists died last month. He was Sir Edward Denny Bacon, "curator of the royal philatelic collections" since 1913. Born in 1860, he started collecting at the age of 7 and became a leading figure in philately years ago. He spent eight years arranging the Taping collection in the British Museum.

"No other author has been responsible for the publication of so much valuable and original philatelic material," says the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain.

CARIBBEAN DOLPHIN
A number of British colonies recently have issued handsomely engraved "new design" pictorial sets. The designs of course include a George VI medallion. The Cay-man Islands set of nine stamps is among the most attractive.

The Caribbean dolphin forms an unusual illustration for the half-penny and shilling values. A map of the group (Grand Cayman, Little Cayman and Cayman Brac), with a huge conch shell in the lower left corner, adorns the 1 and 3-pence values; huge tortoise and palms on a beach, 2 and 6-p; a beach view on Grand Cayman, 1 1/2-p; and a Cayman schooner with sails set on the 2 1/2-p.

What Other Editors Say

OUR PENSION GROUPS

Why is this state so prolific in old age pension ideas? There's a clue in statistics just released by a national life insurance company. In Long Beach, this company finds 9.2 per cent of the population is over 65. And Long Beach is where the Townsend old age pension plan was born.

It was really hatched, however, in San Diego, for it was here that it was launched in a big way with a great mass meeting at the Russian auditorium. And here was a good place; for San Diego, with 9.1 per cent, stands second in the nation in the proportion of its population over 65. All western cities and areas, the life insurance company finds, have higher percentages of elderly persons than do eastern cities. The climate, both because it attracts the aged with its mildness and because it preserves the native westerners, accounts for this.

With almost 10 per cent of the population—and more than that of the voting population—of pension age, it is not at all strange that Californians go for pension plans in a big way. But pensioning the aged is a national problem. Some kind of plan should be worked out in a national way—some plan which begins in a small way, so that, as experience shows what is needed to make it perfect it can be adapted without wrecking the economy of the country. Any state plan will but attract more and more prospective pensioners until, finally, the burden of pension payments will impoverish those under pension age.

A long residence requirement might stave this off for a few years, or even for a generation, but, unless other states have laws of identical liberality, the time would come when this state's population would consist, in a large percentage, of pensioners.—San Diego Sun

LIFE IN HIM
Daniel O'Connell, the Irish statesman and barrister, was one day occupied in contesting a will in court. It was O'Connell's contention that the pen had been put in a dead man's hand to trace his signature. The principal witness, under sworn statement and repeated cross examination, always returned to the same phrase: "There was life in him."

After looking at the man for some time, O'Connell finally said: "By virtue of your oath, did you not put a fly in the dead man's mouth in order that you might swear there was life in him?" The witness, paling at being discovered, confessed that this was just what he had done.

VETERANS, JOBS, PENSIONS

To the Editor: A recent issue of the American Legion magazine contains a letter from one Fred Ketchen of Savannah, Tenn., that should receive wide circulation among persons who are not veterans as well as the veterans themselves. Therefore, I request that you reprint it, as follows:

"The effort the American Legion is putting forth in behalf of the unemployed within the ranks of the ex-service men is most commendable."

"May I make this one suggestion? The largest single employer in the Western hemisphere is the United States government. The turnover of employees is exceedingly large. There will come a time and probably not far distant, when all ex-service men will be given a pension."

"Why should it not be economically good sense if for no other reason, to employ ex-service men on all civil service jobs where ex-service men can be found qualified to fill openings when they occur? During the past year the entire new government department was organized. Every job in that department could and should have been filled by an ex-service man. That was most certainly not the case in Tennessee." VETERAN.

Archaeologists in Egypt have unearthed a nobleman's tomb guarded by an extraordinary curse—and found it already plundered.

It was curious, the faith ancient Egyptians put in tomb curses. The most ingenious malediction apparently frightened none of the daring robbers, who kept track of rich tombs and lost little time plundering them. Either Egypt's tomb crackers could not read, or they were not superstitious.

An interesting point about this discovery, however, is that the robbers did plaster the facade of the tomb after extracting the valuables. They left the nobleman, whose name was Ny-anh-Pepy, undisturbed in his big sarcophagus. Painted eyes on the coffin stared at them, and according to Egyptian belief, the dead man could see with those painted eyes. But even that failed to shake the robbers' nerve—unless that was why they made the gesture of leaving the place plastered and superficially "undisturbed."

The curse they risked was this: if any one disturbed the tomb the owner would expose him in the judgment Hall of the Great God, and his head would be twisted off like a goose.

Prof. Selim bey Hassan, of the Egyptian antiquities department, is the discoverer of this and other tombs of ancient nobles at Sakkarah, where the Step Pyramid stands.

Tombs he has recently entered there date from the fifth and sixth dynasties. Built and used about 2600 B. C., they show how Egyptians of rank were then beginning to assume the advantages of royalty in their preparations for future life. Earlier Egypt strove to provide gloriously for the king's godlike future. Now, about 2600 B. C., nobles adorned their tombs, also, with the pictures and writings considered so magically real and useful in the world to come. (Copyright, 1938, by Science Service)

Philosophy

In Alva, Oklahoma, lived a young man who had one of the surest qualifications for success—willingness to accept responsibility. He not only accepted it, but welcomed it. His name was Hugh S. Johnson. Most young men of his age were inclined to do only what they had to do; but Hugh S. Johnson looked for ways to make himself useful. He had a theory that if you are useful, your reward will come. His father was a postmaster and young Hugh took the responsibility of getting the letters to the addresses and the mail to the trains.

He got an appointment for West Point and, after a time, became a second lieutenant.

When this country declared war in 1917, there were probably a thousand army captains all eager to get ahead. Johnson was just one in that thousand. But he was willing to do something the others would not do—accept responsibility. He was one among a number of army men called to prepare a draft. The others hesitated and quibbled, but he turned in and wrote it in a week.

Now came the test. Millions of registration cards had to be printed and distributed, but this could not be done without an order from congress. But congress delayed—and men were dying in France.

The young captain waited—congress still delayed. And then he decided to do something almost unheard of in Washington—take the responsibility on his own shoulders of getting the registration cards printed and ready for distribution. He went to the public printer, swore him to secrecy, and set him to work printing the cards. Guards were posted, him were drawn, and the printer worked all night.

On May 18th the draft law was signed—and lo and behold! the registration cards were ready and waiting. The government officials were astonished at the miracle. How had this happened?

Newton D. Baker, secretary of war, sent for the young captain.

"You have disobeyed army regulations," he said severely. "You know how serious that is."

"Yes, sir, I know."

Then Secretary Baker slowly got up and extended his hand across the desk. "I congratulate you on having done a fine job. You saw something had to be done and you did it. There are few men who will do that."

The young captain had saved this country three weeks in getting into the war.

He was promoted to colonel on the general staff.

He became the youngest brigadier general in the United States.

It all came about because he was not afraid to accept responsibility. When others hesitated, he acted. The person who accepts responsibility makes himself stand out from the others in an office, or in a factory, or in any walk in life, and he is the one who gets ahead. So when others around you are dodging responsibility, you do just the opposite—welcome it. Do this in little things and in big things and success will come to you. (Copyright, 1938)
